Good Evening, Tim.

When watching the live briefing on September 15th, Dr Strang said something that cut me to the core. He said "Think of the WE and not of the ME when deciding whether or not to get vaccinated". I have thought of the WE every single day since March 2020. I have worked almost everyday providing a much needed essential service to the people of Nova Scotia. My entire team went above and beyond to ensure we kept our team and our customers as safe as possible during this unprecedented time. We had plexiglass installed, maintained social distancing protocols, deep cleaned everyday, and implemented the wearing of masks. When it comes to vaccinations and putting something into MY body, I will most definitely be thinking of "the ME" and I will encourage everyone to make the decision for themselves.

It has already been made clear by your own medical advisors that the COVID vaccination does not keep one from getting COVID, nor does it prevent one from spreading COVID. The so-called purpose of receiving the vaccine (not sure why it is actually called a vaccine when it does not make one immune) is to HOPEFULLY lessen the symptoms if one does get it. My question to you is WHY should I get the "vaccine" to keep YOU safe, when me getting the vaccination has no bearing on you, it only affects ME. I need to make the decision as to what I feel is best for me when it comes to my body and my health. We all do!

The effect COVID has had on Mental Health has been astronomical. Some people feared for their personal safety and took an extended Leave of Absence, with some still not returning to the workplace. Some took advantage of the CERB program and decided to stay home and make more money than actually going to work, and some like myself went to work every day often putting in many hours of overtime, missing time with family, and sacrificing my own mental health due to the absence of such employees. I am one of those people that kept an important essential service open for the good of Nova Scotia and its citizens during a very stressful and trying time in the world. Now due to my vaccination status, our current government (you included) have been brainwashing our fellow Nova Scotians to think that now I am a second class citizen. As if a global pandemic wasn't stressful enough, now we have our own family and friends turning against us if we don't "think of the WE". We also need to worry about whether or not our employers are going to mandate us to get vaccinated or lose our jobs (although many of us worked through the entire pandemic, we stepped up and did what ever we needed to do, no questions asked) and now on top of everything else, we will face discrimination and segregation .

Implementing a "Vaccine Passport", although you say it's not a "passport", it's a "policy" (how political of you) will only cause problems and heartache in your province. Why should some people not be able to take part in certain activities because of their COVID vaccination status? We don't discriminate in Nova Scotia. We accept and welcome everyone. That is who we are. The people of Nova Scotia voted for
